Recently, the grading period for the first-nine weeks closed and students received their grades. Several members of Men of Vision, Inc., were designated as honor roll students.

These young men are under the new leadership of James Eliassaint-Anderson, the President and Director of Men of Vision, Inc. His father, Ross Anderson, is an educator and founder of the organization.

President Eliassaint-Anderson assumed the duties of the day-to-day responsibilities this summer.

In addition to working with the young men, he also works closely with the parents to keep the young men on track for graduation.

Eliassaint-Anderson said, "These young men must be at their best and do their best at all times. If college is in their futures, then they need to show it by their academics and meaningful community involvement."

Under his guidance, twenty-two young men had grades that warrant honor roll status. The young men represent several schools in Hillsborough County, from elementary to high school.

The elementary school honorees are: Khaleel Her- nandez and Luis Pandedales, who are both enrolled at Woodmont Elementary Charter School.

Jakeel Smith is a student at Greco Middle School.

Nishant Binns attends Armwood High School, while Savon Watson is enrolled at Blake High School.

Isiah Johnson, III, and David Gonzalez are students at Brooks DeBartolo Collegiate High School.

Hillsborough High School honor roll members are: Zion Wright, Howard Brookins, and Timothy Lewis.

Xavier Taylor, James Colton, and Nicholas Jervis are students at Middleton High School.

Men of Vision, Inc., honor roll representatives at Spoto High School are: Anthony Goden, Anthony Walker, Karrington Hickman, Jadon Rolle, and Kobe Smith.

Caliel Cajuste, Tyrik Jones, and Derrick Andrews-Powley are students at Tampa Bay Technical High School.

Kory Conners is a student at Wharton High School.

The Men of Vision organization began on the campus of Sligh Middle School.
